Friends and Colleagues -

There are efforts afoot to boost the membership of the campus chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Chicanos and Native Americans in Science (SACNAS). The leadership has prepared a lovely set of materials for sharing/posting. If you can make this information available to your faculty, other advisors and advisees, I know it will be beneficial to them and appreciated by SACNAS.

Thanks to all - and please stay safe!

SACNAS is the largest multicultural and multidisciplinary STEM diversity organization in the country.

SACNAS has the largest diversity in STEM conference, the largest multicultural and multidisciplinary national student chapter network, and the largest cohort of diverse emerging STEM leaders.

SACNAS is a leader in the national movement to build a critical mass of STEM leaders from underrepresented communities.

SACNAS works to create a new STEM environment where minority scientists don't feel they have to leave their cultures at the lab door. Rather, SACNAS helps diverse scientists merge and integrate their diverse identities, creating space to include the unique contributions and perspectives of all.
